Reaching the souls of Taiwan

SEPTEMBER 2015 PRAYER LETTER

Dear Faithful Friends,

They say the eye of the storm enlarged to 100 km in diameter. Two days ago, the second most powerful typhoon in the last 20 years hit Taipei. As our apartment on the 23rd floor was swaying from the force of the wind, I got to thinking about the great and terrible judgment of The Lord. How merciful He is to keep it all together, giving man time to repent. How compassionate He is to follow a night such as that with the calmness and quietness of a new day. According to Hebrews 9:27, one day will finally be our last day, and then we will stand before Him.

I am grateful for every day that we've been able to serve The Lord. Every day has been worth it, and every day has been more than we deserve. Thank you for partnering with us, as we bring The Gospel to those He gave His life for. We appreciate your prayers, and the sweet encouragement you've been so generous to offer us.

By the Grace of God, both Melody and Alex continue their Bible studies. Last month Alex confessed to me that he was almost lured to the Mormon church by a friend at school. He had the presence of mind to ask me first about their doctrine, and The Lord appears to have persuaded him to beware of their heresies. The Mormons are here in great numbers, and they're out for the young people. "They're so shiny," said Alex. Melody continues on as well, two lessons ago she was offended by something brought out during our Bible lesson, but after discussion she accepted the truth. I praise The Lord for it. Thank you for praying for Melody, though she has yet to profess her faith in The Lord, I perceive that she has cast down a number of worldly philosophies already. Please continue to pray for both of them, and for me.

Thank you for praying for my language study. It became incredibly difficult last month but The Lord helped me to make the proper adjustments, and I have found myself on top of my studies again.

Please pray for our protection, wisdom, and boldness when teaching and offering this Bible study. Please also pray for our sending church, Lighthouse Baptist Church, as they also need wisdom regarding various matters. We are so grateful for the fellowship we share with other like-minded churches. Though we are not many, our God is always greater. If He be for us, who can be against us?
